Description:

Most rugs have soils trapped deep down in the rug's pile where they are compacted. These soils are impossible to remove with a standard vacuum cleaner. The removal of this soil is the most important stage if we are to ensure your carpet is cleaned properly. To do this the rug must be turned onto it's front and 'beaten' on the reverse-side to loosen the compacted soil. This can be a very dirty job so you can see why it's not always practical to have this done in your home.
